

Community Activities

Early intervention focuses on showing you how to use your everyday life as learning opportunities with your child. When we talk about community activities, we want to know what things you do in your community. We may be able to connect you to various activities or show you how to find out about what is happening in your community. Now, that may sound a little funny but sometimes we don't think about the things we do or what we do in our communities. Some examples:

Reading your local newspaper – the newspaper lists events that are happening in your area that you might be interested in such as local fairs, crafts shows, special events for young children to participate in and so on.

Listening to local radio stations – again, community activities are highlighted that may be of interest to you.

Libraries – local libraries often have children's story time and will sponsor events that you might find interesting.

Gyms & Rec centers – Contact them to find out about what programs they offer for young children. There often is cost to them if you are not a member.

Other resources – Community postings on the local cable channel, places of worship, community boards at grocery stores/WalMart, etc.
